SHORT BIO

Bart P.M. Joosen (6 October 1963) is trained as civil law lawyer at Tilburg University, the Netherlands. He obtained his (equivalent to) LL.M degree in 1987. After completion of his academic study he was appointed as lecturer in the law faculty of Tilburg University in 1987 and he lectured company law and the law of groups of companies in the period 1987-1990. Concurrently he worked on a comparative law study on the Dutch and French legislation for bankruptcy of companies and was admitted in 1988 and 1989 as a fellow researcher to the Université de Paris I (Panthéon-Sorbonne). He successfully defended his dissertation on “Transfer of undertakings in bankruptcy” at Tilburg University and was promoted to doctor in law science (PhD) in 1998.

After his time at University he first worked as in-house legal counsel at Philips Electronics in Eindhoven until 1992 after which he became active in private practice in Amsterdam. Working for law firms associated with Andersen, PricewaterhouseCoopers and KPMG, Bart became very familiar working as a lawyer in multidisciplinary teams. Bart Joosen headed the Amsterdam Finance & Projects practice of the global legal services firm DLA Piper after he joined this firm in 2006. Since September 2015 he works in the new environment of RegCounsel Financial Services. He works particularly for financial market clients. His main areas of expertise are in the field of financial services supervision with a focus on micro-prudential supervision of banks (including in-depth Basel II/Basel III and Solvency II knowledge), insurance companies and investment firms and payment services.

Besides working in private practice, Bart Joosen is a full professor Prudential Supervision Law at the University of Amsterdam and associated with the Centre of Financial Law of the Faculty of Law.

PUBLICATION AREAS

(International) Insolvency Law

As outcome of the research performed for the dissertation Bart Joosen published a number of contributions on (International) Insolvency law in domestic journals and books.

Corporate Law

Whilst the first years of the academic career and the lecturing tasks were primarily focusing on corporate law and the laws on groups of companies, the research and publication work has been restricted to a few publications on the subject matter in 1989, 1996 and 2009 only.

Financial Supervision law

Since 1992, Bart Joosen has focused on the laws and regulations for the financial sector along his orientation in private practice where his main advisory and transactional work for clients have been in the financial services industry. Along this further development, the publications and further research have been focusing on the financial services regulations with a particular attention to the prudential supervision and capital adequacy topics concerning banks, insurance companies, investment firms and other financial undertakings for which prudential supervision issues are relevant.
